COOR THE DYING WIFE.

Lay the gem upon my bosom, Let me feel her sweet, warm breath For a strange chill o'er me passes, And I know that it is death, I would gaze upon the treasur Scarcely given ere I go, Feel her rosy , dimpled firgers, Wander o'er my cheek of snow.

I am passing through the waters, But a blessed shore appears, Kneel beside me, husband, dearest, " Let me kiss away thy tears. Wrestle with thy grief, my Lusland, Strive from midnight until day, It may leave an angel's blessing When it vanishes away. Lay the gem upon my bosom,

'Tis not long she can be there; See' how to my heart she nesties, 'Tis the pearl I love to wear. If, in after years, beside thee Sits another in my chair. Though her voice be sweeter music, And her face than mine more fair-

If a cherub calls the "father," Far more beautiful than this, Love thy first born, O, my husband! Turn not from the motherless. Tell her sometimes of her mether You will call her by my name? Shield her from the winds of sorrow: If sheerr, oh! gently blame.

Lead her sometimes where I'm sleeping, I will answer if she calls, And my breath will stir her ringlets When my voice in blessing falls. And her soft black eyes will brighten With a wonder whence it came, In my heart when years pass o'er her, She will find her mother's name. It is said that every mortal Walks between two angels here; One record sthe ill, but blots it, If before the midnight drear Man repenteth: if uncancelled, Then he seals it for the skies, And the right hand angel weepeth, Bending low with veiled eyes.

I will be lær right hand angel, Sealing up the good for heaven, Striving that the midnight watches Find no misdeed unforgiven. You will not forget me, husband, When I'm sleeping neath the sod! Oh! love the jewel given us, As I love thee next to God
